Friday, 4 December 2009 – The SA Pony Trot kids flew the flag for harness racing while they promoted tomorrow night's Globe Derby Park - National Reinswomen's Challenge and met TV stars and pop stars at Adelaide's Channel Seven Sunrise Breakfast Show today at Elder Park.

Ten of the local pint sized trotting stars got out of bed early today along with the pony trotters Midnight Star and PJ to attend the local event. Sunrise Entertainment Editor Nuala Hafner who was in Adelaide with the 7 show co hosts Melissa Doyle and David Koch took an instant shine to the local kids and put them on television, giving the local racing and the National Reinswomen's Challenge a good plug.

SA Pony Trot president Julie Billinger said the kids had a lot of fun.

"They had fun and they promoted their sport, hopefully we did our bit to attract a few more people to come along to the event on Saturday," she said.

There will be three Pony Trot races plus a Celebrity Pony Trot for the reinswomen competing in the Challenge tomorrow night at Globe Derby Park.

The first race commences at 5:50pm with the 10 race program featuring six heats of the National Reinswomen's Challenge in addition to the feature Mermaid Stakes and Italian Cup.

Entertainment on track includes two fashion shows, ladies shopping and information stall, musical minstrels, a band, face painting and competitions. Great prizes are on offer for the best dressed ladies in the Fashions on the Field and one lucky racegoer will take home a $1,500 slit system air-conditioner in the 2nd Chance Draw. The event is a fund raiser for the Breast Cancer Pink Ribbon Appeal.
